Terms and Conditions

- The customer understands that for the best results, flowers should be kept in water for as much of the wedding day and days following as possible, and kept away from direct sunlight and heat. Should Paper & Petals feel that the bouquet is too decayed or damaged to start the preserving process they will notify you by email or telephone phone call within 48 hours of receiving the bouquet to see how you'd like to proceed. Should you wish to revoke the service, the deposit is non-refundable.
- Bouquets must reach Paper & Petals no later than 3 days after the wedding.
- The process we use is to flatten and dry out the flowers, this is a process which can result in some flowers being lost to damp and rot along the way, therefore you should not expect to receive 100% of the flowers back that were in your bouquet.
- Drying is a natural process which can be impacted by external weather and humidity factors, please allow a minimum of 8 weeks to receive your finished piece(s).
- Drying flowers can result in colour loss, which will continue to fade over time. This is not a defect, but a part of aging process of a natural product.
